

Senior Product Solutions Analyst

Your talent makes a difference

At virtuwell we believe healthcare should be simple, convenient and affordable. We create amazing medical diagnosis and treatment experiences while cutting the costs in half. We're looking for people who are compassionate, creative, flexible, articulate, and motivated at the cellular level to do something good. If you want to use your talent to make a difference, let's talk.

Accountabilities:

- Designs new features and solutions for responsive web applications by discovering user needs and partnering with business stakeholders, developers and QA.
- Leads the development of requirements and design to bring these features to life.
- Determines the appropriateness and feasibility of technology based solutions which solve business problems.
- Ensures that the system design is consistent with virtuwell attributes of simple, fresh, approachable, empowering, and trustworthy.
- Collaborates with team members through the development process addressing questions and defect prioritization.
- Collaborates with team members to support release planning, estimation, and delivery processes.

Must haves:

- Bachelor's Degree or equivalent experience
- 7+ years of experience as a business analyst, product owner, or product manager with a focus on end user design
- Exposure to working with teams in an agile software environment
- Excellent communication and writing skills with proven ability to design solutions and document requirements
- Familiarity with ticketing tools such as JIRA

Nice to haves:

- Experience in a mobile responsive site development environment
- Experience with related ecommerce or e-prescribing applications
- Knowledge of the healthcare industry from a consumer oriented point of view

Why work at virtuwel?

You're smart and want to get smarter. We have, and are surrounded by, some of the brightest and most innovative people in health care. We're looking for people with skills to teach and a curiosity to learn.

You want a great team that has your back. We're real. We're fun. We like each other enough to hang out outside of the office.

You love the idea of start-ups but worry about financial security. We've got start-up vibe and autonomy, but we're backed by a $5 billion organization with more than five decades of health innovation. And, that also means great benefits – health, medical, dental, life, disability, 401k match, the whole bit.

You bring it at work, but you like a life. Some of our best work happens outside of the office. You get to adjust your schedule to balance your life. Plus, we give you 19 paid days off per year with the option to purchase an additional 10, along with 6.5 paid holidays.

You want your work to mean something. We are changing healthcare one line of code at a time. We have already helped thousands of people receive convenient treatment, and our customers love us. 98% of virtuwel users said they would recommend us to family and friends. If you're looking to use your talents to make a difference, this is the place to do it.

People who are already here

Our software developers and analysts are the technical energy that sparks virtuwel's innovative approach to online convenience care. We are dedicated Agile software development practitioners—we believe waterfalls should only exist in nature. We believe in collaborative cross-functional teams to ensure we continually deliver exceptional value to our consumers. Analysts are key contributors to design, development and delivery of virtuwel's web and mobile web applications. We also encourage our employees to contribute to the technology community through speaking, writing and participating in open source forums.

People we want to meet

You thrive on solving new business problems that make a difference. You are always focused on the most efficient path to the solution, but open and enthused by the freedom to try new things. You are always exploring fresh tools and technologies, and are willing to share your learnings with others. You are a team player, but can crank out work on your own. Join us if you want to use your skills to improve healthcare and have fun doing it.

For more information and to apply go to <https://bit.ly/2KZv43B>